

WORLD LANGUAGES AND CULTURES

OVERVIEW OF DEPARTMENT OFFERINGS

World language study should be an integral part of an academic program for most students. The theoretical understanding of and practical experience in language underlie many intellectual disciplines that try to meet the complex problems of contemporary society. Courses offered by the Department of World Languages and Cultures are designed to develop students' understanding of a second culture through the language spoken by that culture.

The Department of World Languages and Cultures offers the following majors:

- Anthropology (B.A. or B.S.) (<https://catalog.iastate.edu/collegeofliberalartsandsciences/anthropology/>)
- World Languages and Cultures (B.A.) with the following options:
 - French
 - German
 - Spanish
 - Language Teacher Preparation, for French, German, Spanish
- World Languages and Cultures Additional Major with the following options for students with a primary major in another field:
 - French - OR - French (Languages and Cultures for Professions)
 - German - OR - German (Languages and Cultures for Professions)
 - Spanish - OR - Spanish (Languages and Cultures for Professions)

The Department of World Languages and Cultures offers the following minors:

Student Learning Outcomes for the World Languages and Cultures Major

Upon the completion of their program of studies in the Department of World Languages and Cultures, majors with a concentration in French, German, or Spanish will demonstrate proficiency in five goal areas: Communication, Cultures, Connections, Comparisons, and Communities. Using their concentration language, students will be able to:

1. COMMUNICATION: negotiate meaning and communicate effectively in spoken, written, and digital formats. Engage effectively and appropriately in person and online with a broad range of audiences of listeners, readers, or viewers, utilizing both traditional and emerging communication technologies. Share information, reactions, feelings, and opinions via face-to-face discussion, online collaboration, and digital content creation.
2. CULTURES: investigate, explain, and reflect on the relationship between the practices and the perspectives of the cultures studied.
3. CONNECTIONS: demonstrate the ability to build, reinforce, and expand their knowledge of other disciplines through a variety of sources and perspectives, including online sources, generative artificial intelligence tools, and both social and traditional media. Students will develop information literacy and critical thinking skills to evaluate information, solve problems creatively, and navigate digital landscapes across cultures responsibly.
4. COMPARISONS: investigate, explain, and reflect on the nature of language as well as the concept of culture through comparisons of their own culture with other cultures and the language studied.
5. COMMUNITIES: demonstrate an ability to use the language both within and beyond the classroom and to interact and collaborate in their community and the globalized world while also setting goals and reflecting on their progress in using languages for enjoyment, enrichment, and advancement.

Graduates will achieve both linguistic proficiency and cultural literacy through the study of the language and culture of their program. Linguistic proficiency entails the ability to function effectively in the target language and the ability to communicate competently with native speakers of the target language. Cultural literacy includes a general knowledge of the culture's history, familiarity with its literature, and basic knowledge of its social and political institutions.

GENERAL B.A. REQUIREMENTS

LAS majors require a minimum of 120 credits, including a minimum of 45 credits at the 3000/4000-level. You must also complete the LAS world language requirement and career proficiency requirement (LAS 2030 Professional Career Preparation).

Students in all ISU majors must complete a three-credit course in U.S. Cultures and Communities and a three-credit course in International Perspectives. Check U.S. Cultures and Communities and International Perspectives (<https://www.registrar.iastate.edu/us-cultures-and-communities-and-international-perspectives/>) for a list of approved courses. Discuss with your advisor how the two courses that you select can be applied to your graduation plan.

Communication Proficiency Requirements: According to the university-wide Communication Proficiency Grade Requirement (<https://catalog.iastate.edu/academics/#communicationproficiencytext>), students must demonstrate their communication proficiency by earning a grade of C or better in ENGL 2500 Written, Oral, Visual, and Electronic Composition (or ENGL 2500H Written, Oral, Visual, and Electronic Composition: Honors). As the upper-level communication requirement, the Department requires a grade of C or better in any course numbered between 3700 and 3790 taught by the Department of World Languages and Cultures (with the exception of Anthropology courses) or the interdepartmental program in Classical Studies. Such a course will also fill an LAS Area I (Arts and Humanities) requirement.

LANGUAGES AND CULTURES FOR PROFESSIONS (LCP)

What are Languages and Cultures for Professions? The primary objective of the LCP options is to provide learning environments within which students can achieve global literacy, linguistic proficiency, and intercultural competence. In the LCP curriculum, students will learn how professions are shaped by social and cultural forces and, alternatively, how professions shape society. In courses on contemporary culture and society, students will identify and analyze issues dealing with the complex interrelationships of languages and cultures and consider how they may affect their chosen profession. Students will experience living and working in diverse cultural settings through study abroad and internship opportunities offered through the LCP program and/or in collaboration with their respective primary-major colleges or the ISU Study Abroad Center.

Students can complete a World Languages and Cultures Additional Major with an option in French LCP, German LCP, or Spanish LCP. The following LCP minors are available: Chinese Studies (LCP), German (LCP), Russian Studies (LCP), Spanish (LCP). Students enrolled in an LCP option of the World Languages and Cultures Additional Major may receive non-graded academic credit for the successful completion of internships (WLC courses numbered 4990 in each language area).

For the LCP options of the World Languages and Cultures Additional Major, students will complete 30 credits within their language concentration (see specific language requirements to the right) beyond the fourth-semester level, selected from the list of approved LCP core courses and electives designated for their respective college curricula. Students may only enroll in the LCP options as an WLC Additional Major and may not graduate with the LCP option in the WLC primary major.

PLACEMENT POLICIES AND COURSE GUIDANCE

Students with formal training in world languages offered at Iowa State may obtain credit by passing appropriate examinations. Students with native fluency in languages taught at Iowa State may neither enroll in, nor take the Exam for Credit in, elementary or intermediate courses (1000- and 2000-level) in their native language. Students are considered to have native fluency if their ethnic first language as indicated on the matriculation form is the language in which they wish to enroll. Students are also considered to have native fluency if they have had substantial attendance at a secondary school or university where the language of instruction is the language in which they wish to enroll at ISU. Students with native fluency may be eligible to enroll in literature and civilization courses in their native language at the 3000-level or above; such students must also consult the department office to determine eligibility for advanced composition and conversation courses (3000-level and above). Students who have completed three or more years of high-school world language study may neither enroll in, nor receive credit for, 1010-1020 in those languages; credit may be obtained by passing the appropriate Exam for Credit or by completing an advanced sequence (2000-level or higher) in that language. Students who complete an approved sequence of courses in a single language at the 2000- or 3000-level (e.g., 2010 and 2020 or 3010 and 3020) with a grade of C- or higher are eligible to receive credit for 1010 and 1020 in that same language if they have not received credit for a 1010 or 1020 course in the language. Students who complete a 1020 course with a grade of C- or higher are eligible to receive credit for 1010 in that same language if they have not received credit for 1010 in the same language. Students should contact the department after completion of the course sequence to receive credit. Courses in the 1010-1020 level may not be taken on a remedial basis.

Students who have completed two years, but fewer than three years of a single high-school world language may not enroll in a 1010 course in that language. These students may enroll in either a 1020 course in that language, or, in the case of Spanish, SPAN 1970 Accelerated Elementary Spanish. Before enrolling in either SPAN 1970 or a 1020 language course, students are recommended to take the online placement test available on the Placement and Credit Exams page located in the Academics tab of the Department of World Languages and Cultures webpage (<https://language.iastate.edu/>). After completing the online placement test, students who believe that they have extenuating circumstances may appeal to the Department of World Languages and Cultures in order to request enrollment in a 1010 language course.

SPAN 1970 Accelerated Elementary Spanish is designed for students who a) wish to fulfill the LAS world language requirement in one semester with a single course, b) want more experience with Spanish before moving to the 2000-level, or c) want to fast track their Spanish coursework to complete a minor or primary or additional major in Spanish more quickly. Students who complete SPAN 1970 with a passing grade will have fulfilled the LAS world language requirement. Students who have completed SPAN 1970 Accelerated Elementary Spanish and wish to pursue further study in Spanish may enroll in SPAN 2010.

Students with disabilities who need to satisfy the world language requirement may direct questions to their academic advisor, the Department of World Languages and Cultures, or the Disability Resources Office.

Credit by examination in the Department of World Languages and Cultures for courses numbered 1010, 1020, 2010, and 2020 is available for many languages. For credit in French, German, and Spanish, students may take standardized CLEP exams. For Chinese 1010-2020 and Latin 1010-1020, students may take exams administered in the WLC Language Studies Resource Center, 3142 Pearson Hall. Credit by examination is available only to students not currently enrolled in the course. Credit by examination for other courses in the Department is not available. Please see the Placement and Credit Exams page located in the Academics tab of the Department of World Languages and Cultures webpage (<https://language.iastate.edu/>) for more details.

Language and literature courses numbered 3000 and above are principally taught in the target language; courses numbered in the 2700s, 3700s, and 4700s are taught in English. For courses taught in English about Ancient Greek and Rome, see Classical Studies (https://catalog.iastate.edu/azcourses/cl_st/). Students may not take intermediate (2000-level) courses for credit after successfully completing any advanced (3000/4000-level) course, except those in the 3700 series or courses taught in English translation. Students who have successfully completed any course in the intermediate (2000-level) sequence may not take a lower-numbered course in that sequence for a grade.

STUDY ABROAD

The Department also offers faculty-led summer study abroad programs in Costa Rica, France, Germany, Italy, and Spain; and semester study abroad programs in Spain. Programs and exchanges in other areas of the world are offered through study abroad providers. Information concerning these programs can be obtained directly from the Department.

Graduate Programs

Graduate Minor in Spanish

The Department of World Languages and Cultures offers course work leading to a graduate minor in Spanish. The graduate minor is designed to provide an opportunity for graduate students to further their knowledge of Spanish to complement work in their major disciplines and provides formal recognition of student achievement and expertise.

Prerequisites

Graduate students who wish to minor in Spanish must have 4000-level proficiency in Spanish. When this is not the case, the student may be required to take a language course below the 4000 level, which would not count towards the graduate minor requirements.

Course Requirements

For the M.A. or M.S.: Three courses in Spanish at the 4000 level or above.

For the Ph.D.: Four courses in Spanish at the 4000 level or above; must include at least one three credit course at the 5000 level.

At least two courses for the M.A., the M.S. and the Ph.D. minors must be taken in residence at Iowa State University. Papers written for these courses are expected to have a content and depth commensurate with the graduate status of the student.
